

We offer three one-week courses to begin your adventure. This foundation will lay the groundwork to expand your understanding of survival skills and allow you to develop confidence as you master these core competencies.

Some of these include primitive cooking, smoking meat, basketry, pottery, brain tanning, cordage weaving, animal tracking, and awareness.

Come join us this summer at Camp Lavigne for a week of skill-building, personal growth and fun.

A wilderness survival program based on ancient skills proven over thousands of years.

Requirements to attend:

You must be a registered scout or scouter with the Boy Scouts of America.

Youth members must be 14 years old and First Class rank by the first day of classes.

"These skills have changed my life and the way I look at everything," Travis B.

"These skills I have learned not only enabled me to survive in the wilderness, I can LIVE in the wilderness. Nobody can take that away," Andy J.

"Learning these skills will allow you to experience the greater things in life that most people miss," Nate F.

WILDERNESS LIVING

Ready to take your outdoor living skills to the next level?

Experience hands-on wilderness living activities such as starting fires with fire-by-friction, building warm shelters with debris, making strong cordage, hunting with primitive weapons, and becoming invisible in the forest.

That's just the first week!

Learn how to build a debris hut that can keep you warm even if the temperature drops below zero.

Preserve meat by smoking.

Learn why the throwing stick is one of the most convenient hunting methods.

Learn why the Bow drill is the best fire-by-friction method to know.

Burning bowls for boiling water to cook and of course to eat from.
